

Investigate Airport Well

Town Will Seek Better Water Supply

The possibility of utilizing the water well drilled during the war years to supply the Vulcan Airport when it was operating as a flying training school will be investigated by the Town of Vulcan.

It is understood that the large well, which is set with six-inch casing, would go a long way toward supplying the water needs of the growing town and that the water is of good quality. Tentative plans would involve a pipeline from the well to town, but no action is being taken until geologists' report and other data concerning the well are received.

The town's present water supply from wells within the town limits is sufficient but not ample and is heavily laden with glauber's salts. The matter of increasing the water supply was discussed by the town council at its regular meeting Monday night, when it was decided to seek further information on the well used to supply the airport.

PARADES associated with fairs, stampedes and agricultural exhibitions in many Alberta communities are being highlighted by the presence of Alberta government's float, originally designed for participation in the Grey Cup parade of last year. The float is shown above as a unit in the highly successful Ponoka Stampede parade.

It is available without charge on request from Alberta communities, on a first come first served basis, compatible with transportation possibilities. It is being moved rapidly about Alberta by trucks of the Alberta Highways Department. Already, it has been requested by Drumheller, Stettler, High River, Coleman, Bawlf, Sundre, Medicine Hat, Lloydminster and many other communities. Requesting organizations must provide the tow tractor for the parade, the properly attired girl to occupy the float seat and ensure careful handling of the float while in their possession. Requests should be directed to the Director of Advertising, Department of Economic Affairs, Legislative Building, Edmonton.

Guest Editorial

We're taking this space this week to salute our colleagues of the weekly press who are holding their 40th annual convention in Regina.

Editors and publishers of weekly newspapers from Newfoundland to Vancouver Island have gathered in the famed prairie city to discuss the problems that confront them in this highly mechanized, rapidly changing world.

And those of you who are not familiar with the weeklies may wonder how they survive the competition of the big dailies, the national news magazines and radio and TV.

The answer is simple: Your weekly editor has changed with the times, and so continues to fill an important role in the communications network of his community.

He does the job of providing accurate local news and opinion in a way that meets the high technical and cultural standards of today's modern reader.

Gone are the days of the casual deadline and the "Gone Fishin'" sign, which were mainly fables, anyway. Today, the weekly editor has one of the biggest and busiest jobs in the publishing field.

He not only has to compete for business against new and powerful media, but he has to do an ever improving job of reporting local news and interpreting his community to itself. Our higher education and living standards make this mandatory.

And the men and women who are gathered in Regina would be the last to claim that they are masters of the situation. In fact, they're attending the 40th annual meeting of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association to listen to experts and to swap suggestions among themselves.

One of the things they have done collectively through the CWNA is to set up a series of awards for excellence in the weeklies to encourage editors and publishers to strive for greater improvement and to recognize those who are making the grade.

They have, through CWNA, set up their own promotion and public relations program to tell their story.

And at this 40th annual meeting they undoubtedly will take further action to help them do a better job for their readers and advertisers.

It is for this reason we ask you to join us in our salute to them. It may seem that we're tooting our own horn a bit. But we feel they've done a great job to date — and are trying to do better in the future. And that's good for all of us.

Alta. Student Scholarship Program Enlarged

The present to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth from the Province of Alberta on the occasion of her visit here July 21, will be a $910,000 student scholarship fund, to be known as "The Queen Elizabeth Education Scholarship Fund", the Hon. E. C. Manning, Premier of Alberta, announced today.

The fund, which has already been set up under the Student Assistance Act passed at the last session of the Legislature, will make available each year an amount up to $910,000 to ensure that no needy student with even a moderate good scholastic average will be barred from higher education because of lack of finances.

The first payments from this act will start at the commencement of the fall university and technical classes.

While there has been tentative division of the fund into scholarship aid for various fields, the amounts are subject to adjustment as experience proves their need. Present allocations are:

- (1) Scholarships and grants for university students, $275,000.
- (2) Fellowships and scholarships for students in the Faculty of Graduate Studies, 40,000.
- (3) Grants and tuition grants for teachers in training, $480,000.
- (4) Bursaries and prizes for high school students, $102,500.
- (5) Grants and prizes for technical and vocational students, $4,000.
- (6) Grants to nurses-in-training, $5,000.
- (7) Scholarships for students at the Banff School of Fine Arts, $3,500.

Total Scholarships and Grants, $910,000.

HOW TO IMPROVE

The other day my wife tossed a well-known family magazine into the rack with a sigh of distaste. "I'm getting sick and tired of nothing but self-improvement articles. Look, is there a mania abroad or something? Does everybody want to know how to exercise, how to get thin, how to get fat; what to do till the doctor comes, and how to get rid of him when he's finished? Next thing you know they'd be publishing articles like, 'A New Method of Steaming Envelopes Open In Your Pressure Cooker,' or 'How To Remove Warts by Hypnotism,' or 'Hints for Submarine Commanders on How to Organize a Polo Team.' It's ridiculous."

"Don't you want to improve?" I asked, heaping a little coal on the fire.

"Don't try to be smart," she said. "None of us is doing half as well as we know how right now. We don't need information — we need inspiration. I don't need hints on how to do the dishes; I need to get up and wash the darn dishes, that's all. I need to want to wash the dishes, if you know what I mean? You probably don't. You are lucky. You like banging at a typewriter!"

From years of experience at being a husband, I didn't protest that there are countless times when I would rather be at a pool table or a lakeshore than at a typewriter. And, of course, there is research to do. In every person's job, I suppose, there is some sort of equivalent to washing dishes. But my wife was dead right about the surplus supply of people telling other people to do this, that, and the other thing.

Still, we all want to improve. Isn't there some specific way to do it, that could be told simply, once and for all? Wouldn't general principle cover dish washing, writing, exercising and all the rest, so we could have done with this rash of how-to-improve articles?

I don't know. But my father had some general principles I think come close to the matter. He insisted that you couldn't afford to be careless at anything, even unimportant things. Do your best all the time was his motto. That forms the habit. You improve on yourself automatically then, at everything you do, even fishing, swimming or recreation.

I have often thought what a wonderful nation we could build here if all of us followed that one principle, and did our level best at all times. Lately, it has seemed that we have reversed it, doing just enough to get by.

I thought about that a good deal while I was helping my wife with the dishes. Got so deep in thought I was startled when she said, "Look, if you are going to dry the dishes — dry right! And stop dripping soapy water on the floor!"

Wild Rose Emblem

Proofs of the stylized replica of the Alberta floral emblem, the wild rose, are being mailed to hundreds of Alberta industrial firms. Alberta firms are being encouraged to mark their products with the emblem as part of the promotional "Buy Alberta Made" program conducted by the provincial government.

The simplified wild rose emblem is expected to be seen on labels and tags on scores of Alberta-made commodities, and stamped or burned into the surfaces of many other products that do not lend themselves to labelling or tagging. The program is designed to acquaint Albertans with the extent and variety of Alberta industry, to stimulate their recognition and sales on a strictly competitive basis.

The "Buy Alberta" program is organized and operated by the Industrial Development Branch of the Department of Economic Affairs and by the Department of Industries and Labor. Committee members drawn from industry and social and economic organizations throughout Alberta will be active in the promotion of the campaign.

FARM SAFETY

July 19 to 25, is Farm Safety Week. During this time a campaign designed to create awareness to farm safety, is launched. Of course, accident prevention on the farm should be ever present in the minds of all farm people. But Farm Safety Week is a good time for farm families to appraise equipment and habits that may be hazards and potential accident causes. Every year an alarming number of farm people, many of them children, are killed or injured on Alberta farms, and the incidence of farm accidents appears to be increasing. Farm machinery leads the list as causes of rural area accidents with the tractor as the worst offender. In regards to farm machinery, the power take-off is responsible for a great number of the fatal injuries.

Drowning, particularly children, is a close second. Each year there is a number of reports of children drowning in improperly fenced dugouts and stock ponds.

Farmers of today are using more and more agricultural chemicals for the control of pests. Most of these are poisonous to humans to a certain extent. However, very little danger exists if they are properly used. A good slogan is to "Read and Heed, the label." If used according to directions and stored away from children these materials become a safe and useful tool in the hands of the farmer.

Other causes of accidents are animals, fire, falls and firearms. Statistics show that the incidence of farm accidents are highest in the rush season in the spring and fall. At these times, of seeding and harvest, when farm workers are putting in long hours with high powered machinery, the accident rate goes up. Fatigue and accidents go hand in hand. A tired person is less alert. He is also in a hurry, and therefore less cautious. All this makes for a deadly combination.

In recent years a great deal of publicity, aimed at safety education has been circulated by the Farm Safety Committee of the Alberta Safety Council. Literature can be obtained from this organization in Edmonton. Farm Safety Week is a good time for local organizations to pick up the banner and promote safety campaigns in their communities. 4-H Clubs, for example are in an excellent position to carry on this work with demonstrations and displays.

Just one more thought — holiday time is here. Take it easy on the highways this year. Be alive when you arrive.

For several years prior to 1952 applications for Alberta drivers' licenses from persons over 21 years of age and previously unlicensed averaged about two per day. Applications in this category today are becoming a rarity.

Canada Depends on Forests

A third of the primary production of Canada comes from the great northern forests.

REDUCE FALLOW PROFITABLY

U. P. Pittman, Agronomist
Throughout much of southern Alberta many dryland farmers are farming their land on a 50-50 basis—half crop and half fallow. A comparison of yields from dryland crops rotations at the Lethbridge Research Station since 1951 indicates that alternate wheat-fallow may be less profitable than some other systems of farming.

In a rotation of wheat-fallow the average yield of wheat is 29.6 bushels per acre. In a wheat-wheat-fallow rotation the yields are 33.2 and 20.7 bushels per acre, respectively. Where wheat is grown continuously the average yield is 19.8 bushels per acre.

To calculate the approximate costs of production and the net returns with $1.25 wheat, the following costs per acre have been used: seeding $3.00, spraying $1.50 harvesting $3.00 and fallowing $5.00.

Where wheat is grown continuously the average cost of production per acre of rotation has been $7.50 and the net return $17.25. Under the wheat-wheat-fallow rotation the cost per acre of rotation has been $6.33 and the net return $16.13. In the wheat-fallow rotation the cost per acre of rotation has been only $6.23, but the net return has been only $12.50.

Although a system of wheat-fallow has had a tendency to stabilize yields during dry years, net returns from such a system are not always as profitable as from rotations containing less fallow when soil moisture is reasonably adequate.

Family Reunion

Last weekend the farm yard of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Scott looked like they had given up farming and turned to tourist catering for a living. It all was the result of a family reunion when the four sons and two daughters of Mrs. Paterson of Creston, B.C., got together for a family gab fest. In all, 45 relatives spent the weekend camping and visiting.

The party included 15 grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Scott of Penttiston, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. Neville Scott of Creston, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Scott of Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. Harley (Joanna) Hanson of Millarville, and Mr. and Mrs. Royal (Beatrice) Ruggles of Three Hills, Alta., and of course the host Bob Scott is also a son.

All were accompanied by their families and grandchildren. Fred even brought his dog. The parties were accommodated in six tents, two trucks remodelled for trailers and two trailers. Most of them stayed two days but Fred and his family who were on vacation stayed till the middle of the week.

Mrs. Paterson who is 76 enjoyed having the group around her and everyone voted the weekend an enjoyable and successful one. Asked what she had learned from cooking for such a bunch, Mrs. Scott says she knows one thing. It takes a half wash tub of potatoe salad to give that many folks enough salad for dinner. The party enjoyed weiner roasts in the evening as as the weather man was in a co-operative mood, some of the cooking could be done outdoors. It seems like a really good way for a large family to get together.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Groves of Wardlaw were guests on the weekend with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Scott. They came for the reunion.

TORONTODistrict News*MOSSLEIGH*THARLE — LAYCRAFT

The St. Benedict's Anglican Church in High River was the setting for a pretty wedding, June 5, when Patricia Joan, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Laycraft, Herrington, exchanged marriage vows with Gale Franklin Tharle, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tharle of Mossleigh.

Rev. Von Birche performed the ceremony amid a beautiful setting of spring flowers. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white floor-length lace over satin gown and white lace mitts, her chapel veil fell from a pearl studded tiara. She carried a bouquet of red roses from which fell white streamers with tiny rose buds entwined.

The maid of honor was Joyce Christie, she wore a pale blue nylon waltz-length gown with a matching tiara. The bridesmaid was Gail Malsey and her gown was identical but a shrimp shade. Both girls carried a bouquet of white carnations.

The groom was attended by his brothers, Garry and Ronald Brown. The ushers were Donnie Bennett of Herrington and Ray Jones of Arrowwood. During the signing of the register, Carolee Bates of Vulcan sang, "The Wedding Prayer."

For her daughter's wedding, the bride's mother chose a blue and white sheath dress with matching duster, white accessories and a corsage of red roses. The groom's mother wore a sheath dress of a peach color embroidered in pink and green, with white and green accessories and a white gladioli corsage.

A reception for 85 guests was held in the Memorial Centre in High River and among the guests were relatives from Edmonton and Exshaw. A three-tier wedding cake centred the bride's table and was encircled with tulle and the bridesmaids' bouquets. Benny Ball of Ensign proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom ably responded. A telegram of congratulations was read from an uncle and aunt of the bride in Vancouver, B.C., who were unable to be present.

After a wedding dance in the Mossleigh hall, the bride changed into a black and white checked suit with matching accessories and black top coat and the happy couple left for a honeymoon trip to the United States. Mr. and Mrs. G. Tharle now reside on the groom's farm south of Mossleigh.

OF GENERAL FOODS KITCHENS

You really shouldn't let the Saskatoon Berry crop go by without preserving lots of this delicious fruit. Here is one of the tastiest ways...

SASKATOON JELLY
3 1/2 cups juice (about 3 qts. ripe Saskatoon berries)
1/2 cup lemon juice (4 lemons)
7 1/2 cups (3 1/4 lbs.) sugar
1 bottle Certo fruit pectin

First, you prepare the juice. Crush about 3 quarts fully ripe Saskatoon berries. Heat gently until juice starts to flow; simmer, covered, 15 minutes. Place in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. Measure 3 1/2 cups into a very large saucepan. Squeeze and strain juice from 4 lemons. Add 1/2 cup to berry juice in saucepan.

Now, make your jelly. Add sugar to juice in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Stir in Certo at once. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, skim off foam with metal spoon. Pour quickly into glasses. Cover at once with 1/4" hot paraffin. Makes 11 glasses.

Know what pectin is? It's the jelly substance found in all fruits in varying amounts. Certo is pectin extracted from fruits rich in this natural substance, then refined, concentrated and performance-controlled. That's why your jam, jelly and marmalade set perfectly if you use Certo, and follow the tested Certo recipes.

I have a Certo film "Jelly and Jam Session" which I lend to women's clubs and church groups. Like to borrow it? Just write to me—Frances Barton, General Foods Kitchens, 44 Eglinton Ave. W., Toronto. No charge or obligation. This 16mm film is in full color with sound and runs 12 minutes.

Any problems with jam and jelly making? I'll be glad to help you. Just drop me a line. And please watch for my next column.

When ye received the word of God which ye heard of us, ye received it not as the word of men, but as it is in truth, the word of God, which effectually worketh also in you that believe.

1 Thessalonians 2:13
Since the Bible is the Word of God, it has an authority possessed by no other book, and a depth that no other volume can equal. If it is well to know the thoughts of wise men, the product of great minds; how much better it is to know the thoughts of the infinite God, who knoweth all things. David said: "I rejoice at Thy Word, as one that findeth great spoil." Ps. 19:162. But these rich spoils are enjoyed alone by those who capture them.
